Page 2 Rewatched May 29, 2021 "SEXY BITCHES ARE MY FAVORITE KIND OF BITCHES!"I love this bleak and straight-up slasher that gives me blood, guts and a killer that uses text-to-speech to torment his victims with nursery rhymes!! What more could you want?The gore is insane, the characters are charming, and there's even a little mystery with the main character's past.I love the part where they're all trying to guess the killer's phone password and one of the characters sincerely believes that "Die" might be it. It follows a woman who wakes in a casket with memory loss, but soon realizes that she is the victim of a crazed serial killer and must fight for her life. Plot[] A young woman with amnesia breaks out of a coffin in a funeral home, and dials 911 in the morgue, but accidentally unhooks the telephone while speaking to the operator. The mortician appears, Mr. Jones, and is impaled by a man equipped with a chrome skull mask, and a shoulder mounted camera. The girl stabs ChromeSkull in the eye, and runs off while he treats his wound. The girl is picked up by Tucker, who takes her home to his wife Cindy, and promises her that they will go to the sheriff's station in the morning, as Tucker's truck is low on gas, and their phone service has been cut off. ChromeSkull tracks the girl (who has been nicknamed "Princess") to Tucker's house, and kills Cindy. Tucker and Princess escape in Tucker's truck as ChromeSkull deals with Cindy's brother Johnny and his girlfriend, who had come by to check on Cindy. Tucker and Princess seek aid from a recluse named Steven, who uses his computer to email for help, and research ChromeSkull, discovering he is a serial killer whose modus operandi is to send tapes of himself murdering 30 women up and down the Eastern Seaboard to the authorities. The trio go to the police station, and find the sheriff and a deputy dead, and ChromeSkull waiting for them. The group wound ChromeSkull's leg, and drive away, reaching the funeral home. Princess explores the area, and discovers that a nearby barn contains several of ChromeSkull's previous victims. ChromeSkull beholds a still-living captive, knocks Princess out, and places her in a casket. Before ChromeSkull can kill Princess, he is shot by Tucker, who drives away with her and Steven in ChromeSkull's car. Princess looks at footage on ChromeSkull's camera, which shows he was in league with the mortician, who he killed due to the man becoming a liability. Princess takes the car while Tucker and Steven are removing bodies from the trunk, and is locked inside by ChromeSkull, who uses his cellphone to take control of the onboard computer as he follows Princess to a convenience store. Via paperwork in the car, Princess finds out ChromeSkull's name is Jesse Cromeans, right before he attacks her. ChromeSkull prepares to kill Princess, but he is out of tapes for his camera, so he coerces her into going into the store to get one. The clerk sees the threatening messages ChromeSkull is sending Princess through a cellphone, goes out to confront him, and has his head blown off when ChromeSkull turns his own shotgun on him. A customer, Anthony, goes to lock the backdoor, but is decapitated by ChromeSkull. Tucker and Steven reach the store, grab ChromeSkull's suitcase on the way in, and replace the glue he uses to keep his mask on with Cyanoacrylate, which they think will kill ChromeSkull since the adhesive is very acidic and can burn human flesh. ChromeSkull cuts the power, and causes Steven's face to explode by injecting canned tire inflator into his ear. Princess tells Tucker he's not going to stop and wants him to let her go. Tucker tells her she's very brave and will never forget about her. Tucker is stabbed while trying to give Princess enough time to escape with Tommy, the murdered customer's friend. ChromeSkull locks Tommy out of the building, and traps Princess in a freezer, where she says she knows who he is. To taunt Princess, ChromeSkull gives her his camera, which reveals she was a drug addicted prostitute he had picked up, and that she lost her memory when ChromeSkull beat her with a bat. Princess smashes the camera in frustration, and while struggling with ChromeSkull, knocks his mask off. ChromeSkull goes to reaffix his mask, unknowingly using the Cyanoacrylate that Steven had replaced his adhesive with. The chemical melts ChromeSkull's face as he peels his mask off, and as he writhes in agony, Princess bludgeons him with an aluminum bat. Princess finds her missing persons notice (which Steven had printed off his computer) in Tucker's pocket, whom dies of his injury, and leaves with Tommy to Atlanta, after finding out that Anthony was murdered by ChromeSkull. The police arrive, and find the flyer, which Princess had written an explanation on the back of. Cast[] Bobbi Sue Luther as The Girl/Princess Gemstone/Annabelle Or Anne Belle (faintly seen on the missing paper tucker had) Kevin Gage as Tucker Smith Sean Whalen as Steven Johnathon Schaech as Johnny Thomas Dekker as Tommy Nick Principe as ChromeSkull / Jesse Cromeans Jana Kramer as Jamie Lucas Till as Young Store Clerk Seraphine DeYoung as Bound Girl Anthony Fitzgerald as Anthony Richard Lynch as Mr. Jones Lena Headey as Cindy Smith Production[] A majority of principal photography occurred in southern Maryland, notably the state-owned, abandoned Crownsville Hospital Center near Annapolis. The crew spent 24 days shooting in April and May 2008. While the above-the-line production team was based out of Los Angeles, a few department heads were locals to DC-Maryland-Virginia, as well as most of the crew. Lead actress/producer Bobi Sue Luther is a native of the area, and was able to use personal connections to secure key locations. The production employed creative methods to save money; for instance, Chromeskull's on-camera vehicle was director Robert Hall's daytime rental car, and the VW Jetta that Princess rides off in at the finish was owned by the production designer.
